

The ionization enthalpy and density increase in the group from top to bottom.

a) true

b) false

Answer: b

Explanation: Density increases with increase in atomic number due to the increase in mass per unit volume down the group and the ionization enthalpy decreases from carbon to stannum, for plumbum it is slightly higher than stannum. So the above statement is considered to be false.