

The dry ice is _____

- a) solid carbon dioxide
- b) liquid carbon dioxide
- c) gaseous carbon dioxide
- d) plasma carbon dioxide

Answer: a

Explanation: Carbon dioxide is linear gas at ordinary temperature but at low temperatures, it is in solid form and also known as dry ice or drikold. it is used for storing frozen substances at a lower temperature than normal water and it is used for cooling.