

There is not much to remember on this topic. You have to understand how to calculate errors when there are addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division of quantities. In dimensional analysis, units of basic physical quantities, you learned throughout your JEE Physics. Also, if you have a very good understanding of how to use measurement devices like Vernier Caliper and Screw Gauge, then you will be able to solve questions without remembering any formula.