

Question. During decomposition of an activated complex :

(a) energy is always released (b) energy is always absorbed

(c) energy does not change (d) reactions may be formed

Solution: (a, d) Activated complex is formed at the highest level of energy of the system. It is unstable and decomposes to give products with release of energy. Reactants may be formed if the reaction is reversible.