

Boron does not exist as B^{3+} ion?

ANS: , the total energy required to produce B^{3+} ion is much more than would be compensated by the hydration enthalpy, and hence B^{3+} ion does not exist