

Q 03. Do all the electrons that absorb a photon come out as photoelectrons?

Sol. In photoelectric effect, we can observe that most of the electrons knocked by photons are scattered into the metal by absorbing photons. Only a few come out of the surface of metal whose energy becomes greater than the work function of the metal. So, not all the electrons that absorb a photon come out from the metal surface.